1 Long ago were seven boys who used to spend all their time down by the townhouse playing games, rolling a stone wheel along the ground, sliding and striking it with a stick

2 Their mothers scolded them, but it was of no use. One day they collected some stones and boiled them in the pot with the corn for dinner.

3 When the boys came home hungry their mothers dipped out the stones and said, "Since you like games better than the cornfield, you can have stones for dinner."

4 The boys were very angry and went down to the townhouse saying, "Since our mothers treat us like this, let's go somewhere we will never bother them again." They began to dance and went around the townhouse. Their mothers were afraid something was wrong and went to look for the boys.

8 The other six circled higher and higher until they went up into the sky, which is where we see them now as Pleiades, which the Cherokee call Anitsutsa.

9 The people grieved for the boys long after them, but the mother of the boy who had been swallowed by the ground came every morning and evening to cry over the spot, until the ground was damp with her tears.
